We are a company built on a foundation of quality and trust. Founded 42 years ago by the Ferraro family, our commitment to craft, quality and building lasting relationships continues to be at the forefront of what we do. We lead every day with a passion for crafting beautiful and unforgettable family homes and are proud to be a generational homebuilder. Our homeowners are what drive our business and providing an exceptional experience is our duty to them. Whether it's our staff, partners, trades, or customers, we align ourselves with those who share a common goal – to always do the right thing.

CARDEL HOMES

Back in 1973, we built the first Cardel home. And while our ambition was modest – to build one home for one family – our sense of responsibility was as real as that first nail. Today, over four decades later, Cardel has grown into an international builder with operations in Calgary, Ottawa, Denver and Florida. But despite our growth and expansion, we still retain the best attributes of a family-run business: quick reflexes, a tight-knit management team and an ironclad dedication to quality and community.
